Washington—Again the diplomacy of the United States has reached the critical point of threatening Mexico with a severance of diplomatic relations. It is all the more critical because the threat has been made public, for usually words of such strong tenor as Secretary Kellogg used in his latest note are first employed in the conversation between diplomatic representatives. The fact that the United States lets it be known exactly what course she intends to pursue means that there is no recession possible now from that position.

The department of state has had the same vexing experience with Mexico in the past. Administrations have had. It is due partly to the inability of the Latin mind to understand Anglo-Saxon logic, a circumstance that has to no small extent kept the political pot in Europe boiling incessantly. The present crisis however is largely due to the growing belief in Mexico that the United States since the European war has grown pacifistic and that the use of force to protect American rights abroad is largely unlikely.

SIZED UP PSYCHOLOGY
Mexico has in a sense sized up correctly the American psychology because no military or naval demonstrations have been employed to parallel American diplomacy south of the Rio Grande. There remains another powerful factor—the employment of moral and economic force. This, the Mexican administration does not fully comprehend. For a severance of diplomatic relations between the United States and Mexico would probably be accompanied by a distinct effort on the part of America to persuade all other nations, particularly European, to withdraw recognition. The rights for which the United States is making a fight are equally important to the nationals of other countries.

President Calles has the backing of his own congress and probably will derive considerable popularity from a defiance of the United States but experience has proved that a withdrawal of recognition or rather a failure to clothe recognition with moral support merely encourages seditious elements to undertake revolution. There are a dozen different ways in which the United States can employ its power and influence without military or naval force. These steps naturally follow in sequence and the only important phase of the situation which the Mexicans may not appreciate is that the United States if forced to do so will go ahead with each of these steps.

VITAL POINTS INVOLVED
Something broader and more significant than a mere defense of property rights is involved in the dispute. It is whether a pledged word given as a promise to American commissioners is to be kept. The sanctity of international obligations is greater than the property involved. Thus the United States, after trying for two years by persuasive notes and dozens of conversations between the American ambassador, James T. Sheffield, and the Mexican government, now finds that patience has reached the breaking point and some other language—the phrases of full-meaning threat—is the alternative. In the past, such a change has either meant recession or a change in substance if not in form or else it has meant another revolutionary disturbance in which the United States has withdrawn its moral support from the constituted government.

Mexico's administration can choose either course but the definite end of the coaxing and cajoling has arrived and the old-time of the respectable at $2.42 and involved claims at $1,454.50. His assets were said to be $4,164.50 of which he claimed $2,220 as exempt. The first meeting of creditors will be held at Mr. Behnke's office in the Insurance-bldg. on Wednesday, Dec. 8. Dolph, Appleton attorney, was appointed trustee at a meeting of creditors of Edward and Theodore Schultz, town of Center, (held at Mr. Behnke's office Monday afternoon. The men filed petitions of bankruptcy individually and as partners a few weeks ago.

DEERBROOK MECHANIC
VOLUNTARY BANKRUPT
A petition in voluntary bankruptcy was filed Wednesday with C. E. Behnke, referee in bankruptcy, by John E. Seivi of Deerbrook, Langlade co., a mechanic. He listed his assets as claims at $2,422 and unsecured claims at $1,454.50. His assets were said to be $4,164.50 of which he claimed $2,220 as exempt. The first meeting of creditors will be held at Mr. Behnke's office in the Insurance-bldg. on Wednesday, Dec. 8.

CAL PLANS USUAL
THANKSGIVING DAY
BUSINESS PROGRAM

Washington, D. C.—(AP)—Except for attendance at one of the capital's special Thanksgiving church services and a big turkey dinner, President Coolidge Thursday faced his customary holiday program of business and visits to his office in the morning and afternoon.

Departing in one respect, however, from his usual Thanksgiving day program, he decided to attend the special union service arranged at the Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Episcopal church. Instead of going to the First Congregational church, which he joined shortly after becoming president. The invitation to the President and Mrs. Coolidge to attend Thursday's service, with their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Stearns of Boston, was extended by Bishop William F. McDowell of Washington.

The traditional piece of resistance for the White House dinner weighed 24 pounds and came from Missouri, the gift of Governor Barker of that state.

Burglars Force Way into
Chippewa Falls Postoffice Early Today

Chippewa Falls—(AP)—Robbers cut their way into the postoffice vault here Wednesday night and took for themselves $9,000 and $10,000 in one and two cents stamps from an inner safe.

The robbers are believed to have been frightened away for they overlooked $200 in cash which was left on the floor of the safe. A larger safe containing money orders and a large amount of money was unlooted. The burglary was executed in almost the identical manner in which the postoffice was robbed a year ago. Foot tracks and wheel marks were visible under a window by which entrance to the building was made. The window was pried up, as was the door of the office of Postmaster E. R. Nickel. The men forced their way into the money order room where a strong light was kept burning. So as not to attract attention a canvass was stretched across the vault from beneath the light. This sheltered the men at their work.

CUT LARGE HOLE
A hole about 15 by 20 inches was burned through the two inch outer door by the bolt. When the same vault was cut into last February the burglars made the opening directly in front of one of the bars of the door and the fact that the opening was so carefully placed this time leads authorities to believe the same men are responsible for both jobs.

The men evidently crawled through the hole and cut a hole through a second door about an inch thick. The stamp safe was broken into by burning away the lock on the door and $5,000 in two cent stamps was taken from the shelf in the safe. A larger safe containing the money orders and cash was untouched.

25 ARE KILLED IN FRENCH LANDSLIDE

Disaster Is Result of Recent Heavy Rainfalls; More
Slides Threatened

Nice, France—(AP)—Twenty-five persons are known to have perished in landslides in the village of Roque Villiers in the Alps Maritimes department, due to the recent heavy rainfall. The entire Belvédère mountain is suffering from slips of land, part of the village of Bollène-Vesubie has been evacuated.

The total fatalities in the stricken regions have not been ascertained, and it is expected that a long time will elapse before the exact number is determined. The victims are buried under thousands of tons of earth and would-be rescuers have been compelled to give up their attempts to dig out the bodies in the fear of causing further slides.

Roque Villiers was the worst sufferer, an avalanche of earth, rock and mud half a mile wide having swept down upon the village with its 1,500 inhabitants.

RESCUE FIVE MINERS IN PENNSYLVANIA

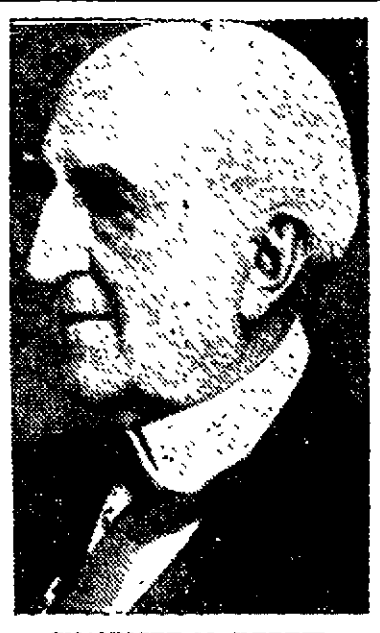

BEST THANKSGIVING DAY

New York—(AP)—Chauncey M. Depew believes Thanksgiving day this year to be the happiest and best this country has ever had and hopes the day will prove a "healthy elevating and improving symbol of a better world, with more right thinking and right acting people."

Mr. Depew is 92 years old. He is practically recovered from a recent attack of grip.

"We have in the White House an undivided Puritan for president and people not at all serious-minded have an object lesson of a Puritan in power, and they like him," Mr. Depew said.

"We are the extremely practical people in the world and judge everything by results. The result of Coolidge's two years has been what people want, and it is a characteristic of Americans that they are wonderfully satisfied when they get what they want."

Scientist Plans Study
Of Denizens Of Ocean

New York—(AP)—William Beebe, scientist and explorer of the New York Zoological society, is planning to descend in a steel cylinder into strange world Jules Verne imagined and wrote about in Forty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea.

The cylinder is now being made. Dr. Beebe hopes to go a mile or more beneath the ocean's surface so that he can observe deep sea fishes in their native haunts. He has fished some of them up in nets and found them most interesting specimens but they all died before reaching the surface or soon after.

Some of these deep sea fishes have organs which emit a powerful light, so the explorer has decided not to equip his diving cylinder with lights at least not his first one. Later, however, he says, he may take a searchlight below with him so he can take motion pictures of the life on the ocean bed. He will also be equipped with a waterproof telephone over which he will dictate his observations to a stenographer.

Dr. Beebe's cylinder will be furnished with oxygen from a tank built into the cylinder itself. The diving bell will be only large enough to admit one person and will have but one small glass window. The device is similar to one used by a German experimenter successfully at a depth of 125 feet. Mr. Beebe's plans are dependent largely upon tests he will make this winter off the coast of Haiti.

ALLEGED FORGERY
NETS ARREST FOR
APPLETON POLICE

Oneida Man Taken into Custody by Appleton Officers Late Wednesday

Arrested by Appleton police after he is alleged to have passed a forged check for $84 on the George Walsh Clothing company, receiving most of the face value of the instrument in change, William Skennandore, town of Oneida, was bound over for trial Friday afternoon when arraigned before Municipal Judge Theodore Berg.

At police headquarters, it was stated, the man was found to have $61 in currency in his pockets. Bond was set at $500 and it appeared probable that the defendant would parlay a Thanksgiving dinner as a "guest" of Sheriff Peter G. Schwartz.

The check, it is understood, was given to Skennandore to deliver to a friend and it is alleged that he forged the name of the legitimate consignee. An hour or so prior to the arrest of Skennandore a man, said to answer his description, made a trip to the office of County Clerk John E. Hantschel and inquired as to details regarding the issuance of a marriage license. As the prospective bride was not with him his questions were answered and he departed.

Hardly had he left the building, it was stated, when police called the courthouse and gave a description that would have resulted in the detention of the applicant had he returned. It is understood that the groom-to-be had been traced to Skennandore and that it also was known that he might apply for a marriage license.

However, the Oneida man was in the police net before he had an opportunity to return to the clerk's office.

YOUTHS LEAVE FRIDAY
FOR BOYS' CONFERENCE

Twenty-four Appleton youths, bound for the annual state "Boys' Conference" at Racine, will leave Appleton at 5:15 Friday morning. It was decided Wednesday evening at a meeting of the local delegation. The trip will be made by bus. The conference will be in session from Friday until Sunday.

Final instructions for the trip and conference were given at the meeting. The boys were urged for the weekend and general instructions on meetings places and attendances at the sessions were read. They will be accompanied by John W. Pugh, boys' work secretary of the local association, R. M. Bickmeyer, activities secretary, and Orville Wright, boys' work secretary of the Waubesa association. Mr. Wright is a brother of E. H. Wright of Appleton, and he will leave from this city with the local boys.

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION HAS MATINEE DANCE

Members of the Girls Athletic association sponsored a matinee dance at Appleton High school gymnasium Wednesday afternoon. The affair was scheduled for 1 o'clock but the coming of Santa Claus on the 4:05 Chicago and Northwestern train delayed the party until 5 o'clock. About 150 students were present. Bill Montgomery's high school orchestra played.

Impressive Thanksgiving Day Planned; Hope Had Been Abandoned

Hazleton, Pa.—(AP)—With five of its residents restored to their families after nine days imprisonment in the flooded workings of an anthracite mine, 1,200 feet below the surface, the little mining town of Tomblicken Thursday celebrated its most impressive Thanksgiving day.

The rescued men were the center of the observance none of them appeared any the worse, physically, by his harrowing experience.

The men were lifted from the flooded depths after nearly every one except their families had abandoned hope of finding them alive. They were trapped when Black Creek broke through its banks and flooded the Tomblicken mine on the afternoon of Nov. 16.

BELIEVE MAN DROWNED
Charles Smith presumably was drowned in the first rush of the waters. Officials of the Lehigh Valley Coal Co., owner of the colliery, said however that they would not lessen their efforts to find him. Rescue crews which had been working in relays day and night, reached the entombed men shortly before 8 o'clock Wednesday night. They were found in an old breast above the water level off a tunnel.

Henry Kirchdoerfer, assistant foreman of the first rush of water called to his men to run for their lives. Hastening up an old travelway to a gangway, he noted that the others had not followed him. Battling his way through the rising water he retraced his steps and led his comrades into the haven. Here they sat and watched the water rise as the flood reached its crest and then saw it gradually recede as the pumping operations of the rescuers proceeded.

None of the imprisoned men had any food, for they were about ready to leave the mine when the flood and all lunch boxes had been emptied. All, however, felt confident that they would be rescued.

NOTORIOUS CRIMINAL
CAPTURED IN NEW YORK

New York—(AP)—John J. (Bum) Rodgers, notorious criminal, was captured early Thursday morning in a tenement house in Third-ave, the Bronx.

A score of detectives, heavily armed, swooped in on the apartment and snapped handcuffs on the criminal wrists as he lay in bed. Police in many cities have searched for Rodgers in connection with murders, holdups and other crimes for many months.

GRANDSON OF RAIL KING
EATS DINNER IN SHACK

St. Paul, Minn.—(AP)—Louis W. Hill, Jr., son of Louis W. Hill, chairman of the board of directors of the Great Northern railroad and grandson of James J. Hill, empire builder who founded the road, will eat his Thanksgiving dinner in a cook shack. He announced that he would stay in a section crew near here, declining an invitation to go to his home in St. Paul.

MURDERER KILLS SELF
IN SOUTH DAKOTA PEN

Sioux Falls, S. D.—(AP)—Self-administered poison, taken 10 days ago, aided by total abstinence from food since he entered the penitentiary here Nov. 8, caused the death of Walter Zwiefel, confessed murderer of his mother-in-law and brother, at the penitentiary Thursday morning.

AMERICANS, AT HOME AND ABROAD, IN THANKSGIVING

New York—(AP)—Thanksgiving day, instituted 305 years ago by the Pilgrims at Plymouth, Mass., because of a bountiful harvest which staved off possible famine and brought happiness to the people, was celebrated by Americans Thursday at home and abroad. President Coolidge, in his recent proclamation to make the day one of praise to God for a year in which the United States has been "blessed among the nations of the earth," was but following a custom extending from the day's of the Canaanites down through the ancient Hebrews, Greeks, Romans, medieval Saxons, pre-colonial England and the discovery of the new world, as a mode for expressing thanks to God for another 12 months of beneficence.

Trains throughout the country Wednesday night and this morning were filled with persons returning to their old homes for their annual Thanksgiving dinners.

Abroad the celebration began Wednesday night in Paris where the American club gave its annual Thanksgiving dinner, as usual turkey was served with just sufficient sauce and trimmings to give the dinner an international flavor. Myron T. Herrick, the American ambassador, delivered a speech in which he declared it was the duty of every American abroad to aid in bridging the Gulf of misunderstanding that separates the new and the old world.

General Gouraud, military governor of Paris, in an address stoutly defended France from the charge of militarism he believed implied by the Ambassador's words. Alluding to war debts, General Gouraud said France was an honorable nation and would pay its obligations.

Santa Claus' Arrival
Greeted By Thousands

Seething with excitement, some skeptical, others dubious, and yet more fearing to trust their senses that he actually would arrive—a tumultuous crowd of more than 2,000 impatient children and adults greeted Santa Claus at the C. and N. W. railroad station late Wednesday afternoon.

But when the 4 o'clock train puffed into Appleton—Old Kris Kringle, accompanied by a troupe of toys and other merchandise peculiarly appropriate for Christmas stockings and boxes, stepped to the platform.

Santa was given a deafening welcome. Although many of the "kiddies" displayed a bold front when he approached to shake hands a few started to cry and ran to their guardians. Unable to see and talk to every little boy or girl who was at the station to greet him, Santa will remain in Appleton the balance of this week, supervising the work of stocking Christmas goodies in the local stores.

A fleet of trucks was assembled to carry away the trainload of merchandise to the stores where they will be displayed until Christmas eve when Santa, assisted by his myriad helpers, will distribute them to the boys and girls of the city.

Mayor Albert C. Rife, as chairman of the reception committee for the distinguished guest extended him the key and freedom of the city and in a neat speech expressed appreciation for Appleton boys and girls that Santa could find time to visit here.

Tired from his long journey on Thursday the visitor from the frozen northland was to be a guest at country home turkey dinner.

With 24 hours rest his program for the next 2 days is replete with activity.

Late Wednesday it was learned that every child in Appleton can meet him if they will be at any of the following stores at the hours named:

Pettibone-Peabody, Co., at 9:30 o'clock; J. C. Penny and Co., at 10 o'clock; Gloumann-Gage, 11 o'clock.

In the afternoon he may be found at Schuster's Hardware store at 1 o'clock; Woolworth's at 2, and the afternoon will end with the jovial old gentleman holding court at Geenen's store starting at 3 o'clock.

MARQUETTE CLASHES WITH OREGON TODAY

Interest of Middle West Is Centered on Grid Battle at Milwaukee

Milwaukee—(AP)—Attention of sport lovers of the middlewest was turned to Milwaukee Thursday with the Marquette university football team winding up a more or less successful season by playing the husky Oregonians in an inter-sectional game at the Marquette stadium.

Coach Paul Schissler has one of the biggest and strongest eleven ever developed on the Pacific coast. The Oregon team was having word from Idaho, Montana, California, Gonzaga and Oregon, lost only to Southern California, and early Thursday was favored to win over Marquette.

While weather prospects are good the stadium gridiron remains frozen and treacherous as a result of recent bad weather, a condition that will favor the heavier Aggie eleven but will handicap the passing attack of both teams. Coach Frank Murray of Marquette, will start the heaviest team possible but even, then will be outweighed by the invaders. Six men on Schissler's first team are more than six on Mill.

A crowd of approximately 15,000, the largest of the season, is expected to attend the game which is scheduled to start at 2 o'clock.

MANY APPLETON PEOPLE TO ATTEND GRID GAME

More than 30 Appleton people will attend the Army-Navy football game Saturday afternoon in Chicago. Among those who will leave Thursday and Friday are the Hon. George J. Schneider, Samuel Sigman, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Emdor, Mr. and Mrs. John Goodland, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Hughes, Dr. and Mrs. W. J. Frawley, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Driscoll, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Senebrenner, William Roemer, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Catlin and family, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Kurz, and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Peterson, Charles Hoffensberger, Mr. and Mrs. H. De Bauser, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Stansbury, William Ryan, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Stanton.

Los Angeles, Calif.—(AP)—Pola Negri secretly agrees, it is to be thankful for $9,850 which Uncle Sam is going to let her keep. ACCIDENTS IN BRITAIN

London—(AP)—Seventy-one persons were injured Thursday in two railway collisions, one near London, and the other near South end, caused by a dense fog. The mist rolled in Wednesday night and thickened Thursday morning until in London it was possible to see only a few feet. Street traffic was greatly impeded and there were numerous minor accidents.

New York—(AP)—Testimony that the mother of Consuelo Vanderbilt threatened to kill Winthrop Rutherford of New York, if Consuelo eloped with him, served Thursday to intensify gossip in the social world over the annulment by the Catholic church of Consuelo's marriage to the Duke of Marlborough.

Rome dispatches to the associated Press show that the Rota tribunal which nullified the marriage on the ground of duress, received testimony of the threat to kill. The former Mrs. William Kissam Vanderbilt, now Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, feminist leader, commanded her daughter to marry the duke and, fearing that Consuelo might refuse to obey her command, placed a guard at her door to prevent her conversing with anyone. Twenty days after the marriage, the duke informed the examining body investigating his wife's plea for dissolution of the marriage, Consuelo told him she had come through the marriage ceremony under compulsion.

Mrs. Belmont is now on board the steamer Berengaria, which has another notable passenger, Queen Marie of Romania, bound for Bulgaria.

NAVY FLYERS
FAIL TO REACH
DESIRED GOAL

Both Seaplanes Forced Down;
One Plans to Continue
Colon Flight

Washington—(AP)—Once more the navy has been thwarted just short of succession the effort to drive its long distance seaplanes farther than man has ever gone in such a craft without stopping. As in the case of the late Commander John Rodgers' record-breaking flight last year with a F-3 machine, its latest attempt with two P-10 planes, also fell short, happily, of disaster.

With Colon, C. Z., 2,060 miles away as their objective, P-10, No. 1 and 2 and manned by brilliant crews, left Norfolk, Va., late Tuesday. Plane No. 2 in charge of Lieut. Commander H. T. Bartlett, flight commander, was forced down by fuel exhaustion 1,185 miles away at Nueva Gerona, Isle of Pines, No. 1, developing lubrication trouble, proceeded 213 miles further before a broken oil feed pipe compelled it to come down in the Caribbean.

WILL FINISH FLIGHT

Commander Bartlett, after replenishing his gasoline supply will finish the flight. Whether the other machine in charge of Lieut. Byron J. Connell and Lawrence W. Curtin, will proceed to Colon remains to be determined.

Both planes fell short of Commander Rodgers' record of 1,841 miles, established when fuel exhaustion blocked his attempt in September, 1925, to reach Hawaii, and started a desperate search that lasted for days over a wide expanse of silent waters before he was found.

Commander Bartlett's mishap apparently lacked the thrills that befell the other plane, for, after landing at Nueva Gerona, he was able to obtain enough fuel to proceed to Siguanaba bay to await the Raleigh. Although prevented from establishing the distance record he sought, Bartlett will be able to make a technical report of the flight, its other objective, which is expected to prove of great value.

OPEN SMITH MURDER
TRIAL IN ENGLAND

Prosecutor Claims There Is No "Unwritten Law" in That Country

Maidstone, Eng.—(AP)—With the prosecutor pointing out that there is no "unwritten law" in England, Alphonse Smith went on trial for his life Thursday on the charge of murdering John T. Derham, his friend, in the presence of Mrs. Smith.

The tragedy which occurred on Aug. 12 in the Smith villa, "Stella Maris" at Whitstable, has aroused universal interest because of the prominence of the two men, both wealthy, socially elect, and graduates of Eton and Cambridge. Smith is a grandson of the late Hugh Ryan, Canadian railway builder and was formerly an officer in the Dragon guards.

He pleaded not guilty to the charge in a firm voice. The prosecution charged that Smith was jealous of Derham's attentions to Mrs. Smith and the prosecutor read a letter allegedly sent by Smith to Derham, saying: "You stole my wife after eating my bread."

The defense claimed that Smith intended to commit suicide and that when Derham struggled with him to prevent the act the latter was accidentally shot.

LEGIONAIRES PLAN FOR TICKET DISTRIBUTION

Distribution of tickets for "We're In the Navy Now," the motion picture which will be sponsored by Oney Johnston post of the American Legion, was arranged for at a meeting of the post ticket committee Wednesday evening at the office of F. F. Wheeler. The committee issued tickets and a letter to every member of the post. The letter gave complete instructions and urged the members to make every effort to sell a large number of tickets. The picture will be shown at Fisher's Appleton Theatre on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and part of the money taken in will go into the post treasury. An eight-piece Jacks band will play naval marches as a prologue to the picture.

WISCONSIN SHOWS APPRECIABLE SUM GOES ON BRIDGES

State Highway Commission Engineer Publishes 1926 Quarterly Costs

Madison—(AP)—Bridge development in the state of Wisconsin showed a substantial increase over a similar period last year, according to a report made by J. T. Donahoe, state highway engineer, covering the third quarterly period for 1926.

Plans and specifications prepared, represent an expenditure of $74,000, an increase of more than $300,000 over the same period last year. Seven-daylight plans were prepared for the construction of the bridges, Mr. Donahoe said.

"Progress on the larger bridges throughout the state has been rapid," he said, "although smaller spans have also been constructed."

"The Atwater bridge in Milwaukee county, known as project 34-B, is being built in a very satisfactory manner. The west abutment and piers are completed, and the east abutment has been poured as well as the columns, girders, floor and sidewalks over the west abutment and west span. Satisfactory progress is being made on the remainder of the bridge."

"The Clark Street bridge in Stevens Point is also completed. This structure was built under section 57.02 of the statutes. During the quarter plans for the approaches have been prepared and bids received. The contract was awarded to Archie D. Clark of Wausau, and work is under way."

"Construction on the Fox River bridge in Neenah is progressing very satisfactorily. This structure is being built under section 57.04 of the statutes. To date, all substructure units are complete and all falsework in place. Forms for the superstructure are being built. Work on the two Canal bridges, which are being built for the city of Neenah and supervised by the Wisconsin highway commission is progressing favorably and to date the substructure units are practically completed."

"On August 18 bids were received for the construction of the bridge over the Wisconsin river between Grant and Richland counties in the village of Muscoda. The low bidder was the Standish Engineering company of Chicago, and the bid was $184,000.45. The appropriation for this job is $150,000. This structure is to be built under section 57.02 of the statutes. The execution of the contract has been delayed by an injunction."

"On September first bids were received for the construction of the Portland Avenue bridge over the Rock River in the city of Beloit. The low bidder was the George B. Palmer company at Minneapolis, the bid being $99,106.10. The appropriation for this job is $150,000. This structure is to be built under section 57.02 of the statutes."

Deer Stalkers Slow In Completing Hunting Plans

A last minute rush of applications for hunting licenses and deer tags is expected by County Clerk John E. Hantschel.

So far this year approximately 300 tags have been given out against 542 when the season opened for 10 days in 1924.

Of the peak number issued that year 49 were declared void and 5 were returned for various reasons.

The general supposition is that many hunters are waiting to see what weather conditions prevail the early part of next week before applying for licenses.

In 1924, it was pointed out, roads were open for automobile traffic while this year hunters believe it will be problematical as to whether or not the popular northern deer runs can be reached with machines.

The season opens Dec. 1 and continues for 10 days of actual hunting. Each hunter is allowed one tag and must accompany his kill if it is shipped.

LAWRENCE PROFESSOR IS AUTHOR OF BOOK

James L. Mitchell, head of the education department at Lawrence college, is the author of a book called "Principles of Musical Education" which will be published by the Macmillan Publishing Co. The volume was written for use in teaching music in normal schools and colleges.

son at its meeting held August 31 made a finding favorable to the construction of the Scott Street bridge in the city of Wausau. It is expected that work on the plans will be started in the very near future.

EVERYONE IS NOT WORKING, POLICE PROVE

Sociologists perhaps can prove that the vagrant of the old days is a person of the past; most civic advancement associations can unroll reams of statistics to prove conclusively that everyone is hard at work enjoying life. According to the police department records, this may be good advertising but it doesn't hold up. With the recent cold wave came the usual wave of indigents seeking police relief in the form of a place to sleep. During the past three nights twelve such transients have been accommodated with "hotel" quarters in the city jail, Chief George T. Prim said Wednesday.

CONKEY COMPANY SELLS PAPER CARRIERS ROUTES

The wholesale distribution of Chicago and Milwaukee newspapers of the Conkey Book store, 121 W. College ave, has been sold to the Appleton News Co., located on W. Washington, below the Briggs hotel, according to H. E. Pomeroy of the Conkey company. The sale includes the carrier routes for the papers. The Conkey company will handle the routes for the buyers until Dec. 1. Sale of the papers over the counter will be continued at the Conkey store.

REALTORS EXPECT SALES DECREASES

Appleton Home Sellers Sanguinary Over Annual Slump in Transfers

Although the real estate business in Appleton during the month of November has shown a decided decrease over October, real estate dealers say that the decrease is a natural one and business in November has been satisfactory. The annual slump in real estate transactions will visit the city during the months of December, January and February, according to dealers.

These three months are usually the driest of the year because prospective buyers and renters have settled for the winter and do not care to change until spring. Unless there happens to be a special bargain in good property or the buyer sees a home that is exceptionally desirable, movements of real estate during these months amounts almost nothing.

Some business is caused by persons from outside the city who desire to locate in Appleton and must find a home when necessity demands.

COW TESTING WORK SUCCESS FOR YEAR

This month the Outagamie-co cow testing association is completing the first year of its work with eminently successful results, according to County Agent Robert Amundson.

During the year two old type associations have tested 58 herds and 1,000 cows. In October 160 herds were tested, or about 2,400 cows. This makes a total of 3,400 cow records made during the past year.

The Outagamie-co association is believed to be the first successful organization of its kind to function.

MUST DELIVER FREE ADVERTISING MATTER

Distribution of dodgers, circulars and other forms of free or freak advertising, require delivery and not merely to be thrown broadcast on the city streets, it was intimated by Police Chief George T. Prim recently in issuing orders that boys delivering such material must leave the matter at the home and not throw them on the highways to litter up the city. Firms sending out house to house literature are warned to issue strict instructions as to how delivery is to be accomplished, the chief said.

BELL TAILORS ARE SHYING PUBLICITY

Operator of Firm in Denver
Refuses to Comment on Business

Claiming he did not want any publicity for fear that needle trades unions will attempt to organize his workers, now non-union, Michael Heller, operator of the Bell International Tailors, Inc., recently refused to make any comment regarding the operation or extent of business of his firm, according to word received here by the chamber of commerce from Denver, Colo., where the main office of the firm is located.

The firm operates a ready-to-wear and tailored-to-measure clothing factory at Denver and does a retail business through various stores in the west and middle west. It does business in two retail stores in Denver, one in Salt Lake City, and one in Butte, Mont., besides distributing its products through clothing stores in other parts of the country, it is said. Since June 25, 1926, the Bell International Tailors, Inc., has been reported opening stores in 16 more cities throughout the middle west and east, some of which have been operated for only three weeks or even less. In several cities the firm is reported to have been in trouble with municipal authorities who sought to tax the reorganization under itinerant merchant ordinances.

The same firm operated a store in Appleton for about a week several months ago, and also started in business in Oshkosh, Manitowish, Fond du Lac and other Wisconsin cities for short periods.

Something for the House Will Please Her Best

She Can Always Find Place for Another Small Table

If she's a homemaker who's the least bit alert to the newest and best decorating ideas she appreciates the worth to a home of many small tables. She wants one or two more than she has. Perhaps you've noticed a bare wall space in her living room that would welcome a walnut console table, $18; or spied a chair that would be much more inviting for the addition of an end-table, $9.75.

And One More Lovely Lamp Will Be Welcome, Too

Whether she lives in a small apartment, a large apartment, or a house, the charm of her rooms can be measured largely by the number of lamps that are present there. And you, as a visitor, are a better judge than she who lives in the house, of whether or not there are sufficient lamps. It is likely her home needs another junior lamp.

If She Lives in a Home Where Books Are Loved

—some prying person, perhaps, might discover volume after volume tucked back of rows of books, due to lack of space to display them all properly. And you can, with confidence of its being accepted happily, give her some article of furniture offering book storage space. It might be a lacquered rack for the wall. It might be a book trough end-table, or a three-shelfed walnut table, $12.50.

Lovely Small Rugs To Go As Gifts

CHILDREN WORK ON SCHOOL OPERETTAS

Unusual Interest Is Evincing
by Students Taking Part in Productions

Menasha—Rehearsals for the Christmas public school operettas are being held every day. The children are taking a great interest in their parts, and are progressing quite rapidly.

The first operetta, "Santa to the Rescue," is a particularly clever one. It is said. After reading a ladies magazine and learning what women in other parts of the world are doing, Mrs. Santa becomes discontented with her mode of living. She desires to change, and to become manager of her husband's business. She refuses to give it up, but his legal adviser tells him to turn over his business to Mrs. Santa. Thenceforward, Mrs. Santa upholds the former Christmas plans, and works on entirely new ones. Many things follow which discourage Mrs. Santa. Just as affairs are in a serious state, Santa steps in and everything turns out well.

NEENAH RESIDENTS
OWN 1,518 AUTOS

Neenah—There are 11,553 automobiles owned by residents of Winneconne, or one machine for every 5.3 persons, according to a report of E. P. Worthing, assessor of incomes. This is a steady increase over the last three years, Mr. Worthing claims. In 1924 there were 9,515 automobiles in the county and in 1925 this number increased to 10,676. Over 1,200 machines were purchased between 1923 and 1925. Of the total number, there are 1,518 owned by Neenah people. The general average value of the cars is $223.44, or $28.34 less than the general average of a year ago. The report of Mr. Worthing shows that there are 7,755 horses left in the county, showing a steady decrease in the number of "old dobbies."

EKERN OPINION IS AGAINST SUITS IN STATE LINE FIGHT

Attorney General Urges Amicable Committee Adjustment of Boundary

Madison—(P)—As a means of preventing possible disputes between Wisconsin and Michigan similar to the one requiring U. S. Supreme Court settlement, Attorney General Herman L. Ekers Wednesday advocated the formation of a joint committee to supervise the erection of permanent monuments along the border line.

The Supreme Court's decision was also interpreted by the Attorney General in a statement issued today.

"The territory involved in the Michigan-Wisconsin boundary controversy," Mr. Ekers said, "included a strip of land about 235,000 acres in area extending from a point about eight miles east of Hurley to Lake Brule in Forest County, Wisconsin, also about 129 islands in the Menominee River ranging in area from less than an acre to over 300 acres, some of them being covered with second growth timber, and some very highly developed. One of the islands has a nine-hole golf course and an elaborate clubhouse of the Four Seasons Club.

"The decree entered sustains the position taken by Wisconsin and awards to Wisconsin all the territory which she has claimed and has possessed. Michigan does not get any territory that was ever possessed by Wisconsin. Two so-called islands, Merymann, near White Rapids, in the Menominee River, and Sugar Island, have always been taxed by Michigan and considered to be a part of the Michigan mainland, and the court's decree so finds.

"About 13 islands in Green Bay are also awarded to Wisconsin and these include Washington Island, with an area of about 26 square miles and a population of over 1,000, Chambers, Rock, Plum, Detroit and the Strawberry and Sister group of islands. The total assessed value of the lands so finally awarded to Wisconsin is somewhat over 16 million dollars and includes a population between 5,000 and 6,000.

"About 60 miles of the boundary so confirmed was surveyed and marked with wooden markers in 1847. The country through which this part of the boundary runs is rapidly developing and increasing in value. This development will gradually destroy the few remaining monuments of the original survey which would be of great value in remarking the boundary line. The investigations made by this department also show that several aged residents of the region

Hold Census Bureau Must Recognize Home

Recognition by the census bureau of the home and the home-maker is the first step in guiding the home into the right road, is the belief of the General Federation of Women's clubs, which has sent a letter to the Appleton Women's club asking for help and cooperation in attaining this initial work.

The purpose of the movement is to secure the same recognition for work in the home as is given for that outside, on the grounds that service in the home has a value to the family, the community and the country, the letter states.

A memorandum has been presented to Herbert Hoover, secretary of the department of commerce, asking that "Women Doing Housework" be listed in column 26 of the population schedule.

FIVE OF CLARION STAFF TO ATTEND CONVENTION

Five members of the Clarion staff, Appleton high school, will attend the state convention of high school journalism at the University of Wisconsin in Madison Nov. 26 and 27. Miss Dora Kelley, editorial sponsor of the book, will chaperone the party.

Robert Shepherd, Miss Helen Wolfe, Miss Alice Getschov, Miss Ruth Brandt and Miss Helen Dutcher will represent the staff. The convention will take the place of the annual conference of the Central Interscholastic Press association in Madison. Among the speakers will be Glenn Frank, president of the university; Dr. W. H. Bleyer, director of the course in journalism; Prof. G. M. Hyde and Prof. Chilton R. Bush of the course in journalism.

Fourteen members of the Talisman staff, weekly paper at the school, decided last week to attend the convention.

could be of real assistance in this work. It is important, therefore, that a joint commission of the two states should mark this boundary with permanent monuments within the very near future. Such a step would ultimately result in real economy and would be a guaranty against future disputes.

"The decree announced by the United States Supreme Court in the case of State of Michigan v. The State of Wisconsin disposes of the boundary line controversy along our northern border which has existed since 1907, and determines the issues raised by the suit started in Michigan in 1923."

AVERAGE PRICE OF SUGAR-BEETS $7.50

Crop Runs About 10 Tons to Acre Throughout Beet Growing Territory

Menominee, Mich.—(P)—With the 1926 sugar beet crop harvested and ready for refining by the three northern Wisconsin plants an estimation of the value of the yield to the growers was made this morning by George W. McCormick, president of the Menominee Sugar company, at $1,095,000.

This estimate is being based on a yield of 150,000 tons of beets for which the growers were paid an average of $7.30 a ton, the tonnage per acre has been estimated to run about 10 tons to the acre throughout the beet growing territory. The beet territory extends from Delta county, Mich., down along lake Michigan to the Illinois line. The strip is about 50 miles wide.

The output of sugar from the three Menominee company plants averages about 15,000 tons during the 80 day season. The plant here is the largest, turning out more than 1,200 tons a day during the "peak" of the season. The plant at Green Bay has an output of about 800 tons daily and the Menominee Falls plant about 750 tons a day. In all about 7,000 100 pound sacks are made in each 24 hour shift.

The company employs about 700 men, during the refining season besides the 4,000 experienced sugar beet growers who are brought into the beet area each spring, to plant, cultivate and harvest the crop. About 750 men are employed in the 275 shipping stations during harvest and shipping season. The stations are located at points throughout the beet growing area.

A recent analysis of beet sugar made by the Wisconsin Dairy and Food commission showed that there is no difference between the cane and beet sugar that has been properly refined. Mr. McCormick stated. A large part of the Menominee sugar is used in Door County for the cherry canning industry and also by the Biscuit manufactured throughout the country.

VACATIONIST SPENDS $100 BEFORE TRIPS

The average "vacationist" spends from $90 to $100 in his home city before starting out on a trip, according to a survey submitted to the Appleton Chamber of Commerce by Alderman Wenzel Hassman, chairman of the public grounds and building committee. The survey, made by his committee, shows that 80 per cent of this amount goes for merchandise products. A merchant should know when a local person is going out of town, as the prospective vacationist is an easy customer, the survey points out.

Every tourist car which stopped at the Appleton camp site last summer had a cash value of $2 to merchants who secured the trade of that particular motorist, according to the report.

MEXICO IS WRONG
Mexico and the United States are on the verge of a break. This time it is not newspaper speculation. The two governments have reached an impasse in their relations growing out of Mexico's laws regulating foreign property rights. Mexico refuses to recede from application of the law which proposes to confiscate land and property of Americans, unless they by Jan. 1 sign away their rights to diplomatic protection. Our state department unequivocally denounces this stand of the Calles government and insists that even if Americans were to formally relinquish protection, the agreement would not be recognized. Its contention is that they have no power to sign away their rights, that where they have acquired property legally it must be respected by the Mexican government, law or no law to the contrary.

Unquestionably this is sound international law. Unquestionably we are right and Mexico is wrong. We are sometimes led to the suspicion that Mexican politicians deliberately plan legislation and policies to offend other governments, and particularly our own. Of one thing we may be certain, and that is that the state department will not alter the position it has taken. Therefore, either Mexico must back down or there will be a severance of diplomatic relations.

What this would lead to no one can say. Logically, it could terminate in intervention, but we think the possibilities of war are remote. It is not our way of settling disputes of this kind. We have other ways in which to enforce justice and respect of international law as between nations. By cutting off all relations with Mexico we can bring her to a state of dependency that should cause a change of front. In the meantime, our citizens may have to sign away their rights, or they may have to subject to confiscation, but these incidents will be temporary. Ultimately we shall wind up with enforcement of our just rights in Mexico, and we will probably not have to employ military forces to do it unless Mexico should refuse physical protection to our citizens. The country will be pleased to see the government take a firm stand on this question. It is tired of Mexican intrigue and treachery.

USE MORE MILK
Campaigns to encourage the adequate use of milk are assisting materially in reducing undernourishment, Miss Jessie M. Hoover, milk utilization specialist of the department of agriculture, announced on her return from a series of lectures in North Carolina and Virginia. She advocates that these campaigns be undertaken throughout the nation to spread the gospel of "using milk for health."

She reports an average of from 10 to 20 per cent increase in milk consumption in the communities where work has been conducted and she has found that they are followed by a further gradual increase later.

"She points out that the object of the campaigns is to encourage an adequate use of milk, it being always understood that the milk is used in connection with an otherwise varied diet. It has been her experience in more than 30 states that undernourishment is highest in areas where milk consumption is lowest and that an adequate use of milk assists in reducing undernourishment."

Without holding a brief for the milk purveyors, it is acknowledged that milk is a valuable and necessary feature of our diet and that more of it should be used. Demonstrations, such as that staged by Miss Hoover, are of great value in teaching housewives just how to use this universal food to the best advantage and certainly they are to be encouraged.

IT DOESN'T SEEM TO PAY
The great railway system heretofore known as the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway company has ceased to exist. It was a Wisconsin corporation organized so far back that few can remember the time. It is taken over by a new corporation, quite similar in name but organized under the laws of a different state. In other words this great railway system is no longer a Wisconsin corporation, a Wisconsin resident. The loss to this state by the one fact that the new corporation is not a Wisconsin resident reaches into the millions of dollars. It is another direct result of the well-known Wisconsin bleeding process, where, when one is bled too much it leaves the state, and hence is lost the normal and proper income that the commonwealth would otherwise receive.

When the reorganizers of the old road found it necessary to create a new corporation they ascertained that they could form such a corporation with the desired capital setup in the state of Delaware by paying a fee of $25,000 to that state. For the same service the fee demanded by this state is $400,000. There is no more work for the state of Wisconsin, no more expense in this transaction, than there is for the register of deeds of Outagamie-co in entering a deed or mortgage in the records in his office. This is altogether an outrageous charge and serves to drive large capital from making its home in Wisconsin. It has been the policy of this state, however, for a long time.

The direct loss to the state is much greater than appears on the surface and will be felt particularly in the inheritance taxes of which the state is now deprived. The supreme court of Wisconsin has required stockholders of Wisconsin corporations, even though they be non-residents of the state, to pay an inheritance tax upon the securities held in Wisconsin corporations; and this upon the accepted theory that stock in a Wisconsin corporation is Wisconsin property just as much as a farm or any other piece of real estate located in the state. By reason of this taxation a tax came to Wisconsin every time a person died owning securities in the St. Paul road, whether the person lived in Quebec or London. In one case alone, that of a wealthy New Yorker, this state benefited to the extent of an inheritance tax of nearly a million dollars.

This source of revenue is now gone and gone forever. We lose these legitimate taxes through our near-sighted policy. The turnover to the state of Wisconsin in the securities of this one railroad which run into the hundreds of millions, is such a substantial loss that the people of Wisconsin should look upon it with a keen feeling of regret. Were we to eradicate our taxation laws the purposes of trying to hurt someone and supplant it with the purpose of trying to be just to all alike our gain in the long run would be worth while.

Once upon a time there was a goose that laid a golden egg!

REMEMBER PILGRIM FATHERS
Today we are observing Thanksgiving day. To how many of our people is it a gesture, with no thoughtful appreciation of its significance? We fear too many. We have grown too fat and sleek as a nation to give an adequate value to our blessings. We are more apt to think of our troubles and our grievances than of our bounties. Most of the discontent in America is artificially created and has no real basis. With all our faults as a nation, with all political, social and economic evils that can be made the basis of any sort of complaint, we are still the most favored nation, not only of the world but of all time, and our troubles are petty and inconsequential. If the Pilgrim fathers who inaugurated this day had cause for thanksgiving in the face of the miseries, suffering and hazards to which they were exposed, how much more should we today express that sentiment in our hearts and in our lives.

Just Folks
by Edgar A. Guest
THANKSGIVING
This much we've seen:
The living again
Of April and the spring's return;
In June we knew
Her roses, too,
And now the fires of winter burn.
Now blows the cold and cheerless blast,
Yet we are grateful for the past.
Though every tree
Stands silent to see,
Though dull the sky, and dark the day,
Lord, think it not
That we've forgot
What thoughts have passed away.
What thoughts today our hearts are sad,
Springtime and summertime were glad.
Dear Lord, for flowers
Which once were ours,
For all the splendor of the year,
For joys we've known
Though now they've flown
Our gratitude is offered here.
Though winter sees, our gardens bare
Time was when roses blossomed there.

TAKE SUGAR WITH LEMON, ORANGE AS IS
The other day I had just rounded out—that's the precise term for it—rounded out a fine dinner with a large or hospital size slab of lemon pie, the very kind mother used to make, quite unconscious of the dreadful conflict of acid and starch in the pie, when along came the news from the Humanitarian society of East Aurora, N. Y., that this combination is the cause of a cause of Angina Pectoris.
"As long as doctors advise breakfasts of acid fruits, milk, and cereal, or other meals of conflicting acids and starches," announces Mrs. —, who designates herself the secretary of the society, "we shall have Angina Pectoris." Mrs. — informs the press in her letters to editors, that she has had vast experience with this kind of heart disease and she calmly asserts that in all her experience she has never observed a case that could not have been instantly relieved by what she cryptically calls an internal bath.

There is a joker in the boast of Mrs. —, secretary of the Humanitarian society, and in view of the lady's imputation against me, I feel bound to point it out. First the "internal bath" is an enema, a rectal injection. Mrs. — modestly admits she has observed no case of angina pectoris which could not have been relieved—in other words she imagines in injection would relieve an attack of angina. Of course she doesn't know what she is talking about. She goes on, in some of her lengthy letters to the editors of newspapers, to explain that the angina is due to "gas." This Humanitarian society which the lady purports to represent must be a unique affair if it countenances any such mischievous propaganda. Worse still, the lady goes on to suggest to the newspaper reading public that a patient suffering an attack of angina should be given an injection of a quart of hot water containing (she mentions a large dose) of lobelia and a good dash of tincture of capsicum (red pepper). Should the patient succumb it might be rather difficult to convince the coroner that lobelia poisoning had nothing to do with the fatality, if this advice were followed. It seems to me that a newspaper which would print such a letter has little regard for the public welfare.

The humanitarian society, unfortunately, was not functioning when the Creator was getting things going. That may explain how the Creator combined acid and sugar in some fruits, and even equipped man with a stomach which, even in good working condition, contains considerable hydrochloric (muriatic) acid, and provided as the ideal food to go into this stomach, milk.
The term "internal bath," is a trick of the trade, the nostrum and quackery trade. It has been plotted for years by a notorious charlatan who markets a glorified syringe and a line of hokum calculated to appeal to the misinformed or uninformed. This charlatan purports to be the inventor of his syringe, but that is another trick of the trade; as a matter of record, the charlatan bought the patent from a fellow who really invented the syringe. Before getting into the "internal bath" business this charlatan had attempted to market a blindness cure, but it didn't go over very extensively, because there are none who can see through the syringe as clearly as the blind. Nevertheless the former blindness cure quickly got his stuff in a lot of second rate magazines—not in the fiction pages, for stuff printed there is honest.

Only mail order fakers and half baked conmen imagine there is any objection in combining acid foods with milk or with starch or with sugar, if one likes the combination.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Send 'Em to Animal House
What about contagion in the clouds of tobacco smoke hanging in the air of a public eating place, the smoke that has passed through filthy throats and nostrils of the smokers and must be inhaled by non-smokers who patronize the place? (B. M. E.)
Answer—No contagion can occur in that way. Even the exhaled breath of a patient ill of a contagious or infectious disease does not carry contagion, though particles of secretion or moisture in the spray given off when such a patient talks may contain the germs of the disease and so infect anyone within range. But the smoker who pollutes the air of any public place is a pretty low order of animal and ought to be kept in a stable. No gentleman inflicts his second hand smoke on anyone who may not like it; and as for the females who do their fumigating in public, the less said the better (for me).

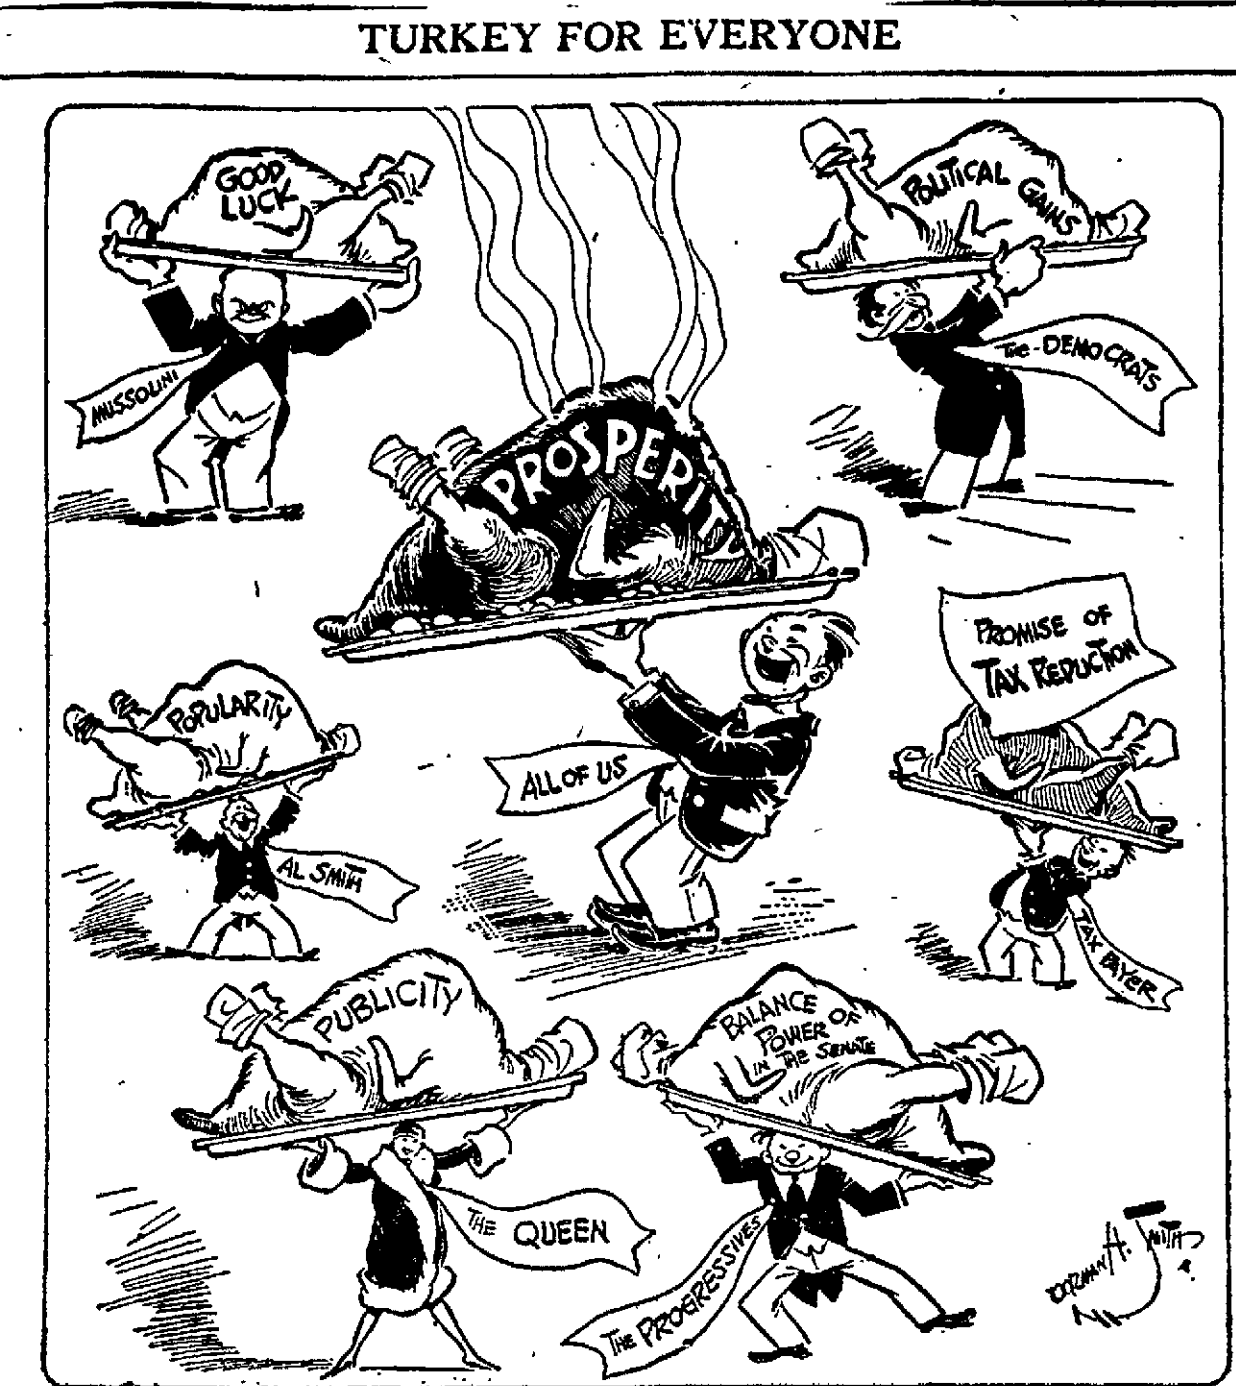

Do Vegetarians Die?
Do vegetarians have what we call contagious diseases? Can you name any instance? Publish in paper, will watch for it. (Mr. C. H.)
Answer—I can't even name a vegetarian, unless it be G. Bernard Shaw, and I am not certain whether Shaw is a near vegetarian or a real vegetarian. Somewhere near I saw some data indicating that people whose diet is largely vegetarian do not live as long as people whose diet is mixed. The practice of going without "meat," but consuming eggs, or fish, or cheese, or butter, or milk, seems to me to have no point, from the physiological point of view. If one eats eggs or milk, or cheese, or fish it doesn't matter much whether flesh food is included in the diet or not.

Anthrax
What is the cause of the disease called anthrax? What are the symptoms? Is it contagious? How long can a person live with the disease? (Mrs. B. E. H.)

Answer—A specific bacillus causes anthrax. The disease occurs in sheep, often without apparent symptoms, but the stricken animal just dies suddenly. The finer blood vessels are found literally choked with the bacilli. Anthrax in human beings is commonly called "wool sorters' disease," because most often encountered among persons who handle wool, hides and rags. In man the usual lesion is a malignant pustule, like a very bad carbuncle or boil, and associated with this severe septicemia or blood poisoning. It is very fatal, but modern surgical treatment effects a cure in a fair share of cases if the nature of the trouble is recognized early.

LIBRARY ADVENTURES
By Arnold Mulder

REPEATING A SUCCESS
They all do it, from the greatest to the most mediocre — repeat their successes. Let a writer by chance or by design hit the public fancy with a book and he is almost certain to write another book as nearly like it as possible. And usually he will keep on writing books as nearly of the same kind as possible until his public becomes sated with them.
The latest illustration is John Erskine. His new book, "Galahad: Enough of His Life to Exalt His Reputation," came to my desk while I was reading the last few pages of "The Private Life of Helen of Troy." I was some months behind with the latter book and during that time it had become a very great success. And "Galahad," to all appearances, is as nearly like "Helen" as its author could make it.
This fact is emphasized even in the physical appearance of the book. "The cover and general format of 'Galahad' are exactly like the cover and format of 'Helen.' Even the jacket is an exact duplicate of the jacket of 'Helen,' with of course the new title substituted for the old. The publishers took no chances. 'Helen' was a great success, so they are going to do their best to catch the eye of all the readers of that book by making the new volume as nearly like it as they can.
The chances are ten to one that if "The Private Life of Helen of Troy" had been a dud, "Galahad" would never have been written. This is no reflection on the novel, which I have had opportunity only to glance at. It is the mere statement of a general fact. If a manufacturer of soap turns out a brand that nobody wants to buy he usually experiments with some other kind. But if it happens to hit the bull's eye with his article, every manufacturer of soap tries to turn out something as near to the popular brand as the patent law or the copy-right law will let him.
John Erskine is somewhere in the neighborhood of fifty years old. He has been writing for many years and he has done distinguished work in the essay, in poetry, in drama and in other forms of literature.
But it was not until the publication of "The Private Life of Helen of Troy" some months ago that the greater public became conscious of him. That book made him known to hundreds of thousands, where formerly he was known to a mere few thousand. He would have been more than human if he had not followed up his success. He is very evidently making hay while the sun shines.
Almost every writer does it. Take for instance Sinclair Lewis. He had published five novels before "Main Street," but not one of them had won a big sale. In those five he was obviously feeling about for a public. Some of them seemed to be deliberate experiments to win a large following, but the public did not want any salt, put upon its tail. Then Lewis seems to have got mad, turning upon the public that refused to read him. He ridiculed that big public, and in his own and everybody else's amazement that public liked it, bought the book by the hundreds of thousands and clamored for more.
So Lewis gave them more. He did the same trick over again in a slightly different way in "Babbitt." But the public called for still more punishment and so Lewis did it to them in shovelful in "Arrowsmith." He seems to think, very probably correctly, that his public is still hungry, and after taking a vacation with "Mantrap," he will repeat "Main Street" and "Babbitt" and "Arrowsmith," rumor has it, in another book that will use the minister instead of the doctor and the business man as his character. But it is reasonable to expect that the book will be the same.
The public plays a much greater part in the writing of books than most people suspect. John Erskine is an essayist and a poet. It is more than likely that the public will change him into a novelist. From now on it is likely that most of his energies will go into that literary form. Shakespeare himself probably wrote dramas and not narrative poems because the public did not buy his long narrative poems but flocked to his first experiments in the drama.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

Tolerant, But Terrible When Annoyed
BY ARTHUR N. PACK
President, American Nature Ass'n.
Here is a creature that has made for himself a name respected in every home. He is about the size of a cat. Some say his peculiar black and white pattern is for the purpose of camouflage—that it looks like moonlight and shadow on the ground, and thus the enemy is beguiled. Perhaps so, but this defense should have been given to some animal more in need of it.
Most of North America is the home of the skunk, except the far north. Prairie, wood and mountain are habitable, for each furnishes him with all he needs, food and shelter. Small mammals and insects, both injurious to man's interests, are his principal and normal food.
Shelter is furnished by the abandoned burrow of woodchuck or fox, or even that of some smaller creature, for the skunk is a burrower himself and can enlarge an underground home if it is too tight to fit. A den in rocks is safest of all.
Often he will turn his back on night and bring up his family beneath a shed or barn, coming out at night to forage and seldom giving any trouble unless the family dog is indiscreet.
The musk of the skunk surpasses in quality all similar scents thus far known to man. The French term him the "Child of the Devil." However, the skunk is a gentleman and never goes out of his way to inflict it on other creatures. He is extremely

The Question Box

Q. Did Christy Mathewson ever play with and other major league club than the New York Giants? H. B.
A. He played with that team throughout his major league career. He started playing with that club July, 1900.
Q. What causes the center of blocks of ice to be milky and have a peculiar taste? T. W. D.
A. The Bureau of Standards says that concentration of impurities in the water frequently causes the center of blocks of ice to be milky and have a peculiar taste. Usually the core water is removed and replaced with fresh water, when the block has been nearly solidified.
Q. What does Man O'War weigh? W. S.
A. Man O'War weighs about 1275 pounds and weighed about 1150 pounds when racing.
Q. What are "beaux arts"? M. L.
A. The term "beaux arts" is applied to painting, sculpture, architecture, engraving, and musical composition.
Q. Do all the sons of the King of England have titles such as the Prince of Wales? H. F.
A. Only the two eldest sons of the King of England have special titles, as the Prince of Wales and the Duke of York. The other sons are merely known as Prince Henry and Prince George of England.
Q. How long do dogs live? L. S.
A. The mortality rate has not been compiled, but the average life of a dog is from eight to nine years.
Q. Who was court dressmaker to Empress Eugenie? E. I. B.
A. Worth is credited with having designed the gowns of Empress Eugenie.
Q. If relatives in Ireland are left money by a naturalized Irishman in this country, must the relatives come over in order to get the legacy? M. O. B.
A. It would not be necessary. An attorney may be appointed or a trustee who can receive the money and make it payable at a bank in Ireland after all duties assessed are paid.
Q. How much whiskey is there in the bonded warehouses now? A. F. W.
A. There are as of July, 1926, 23,140,000 gallons of whiskey in the government warehouse. These figures can not be recorded as strictly accurate, since much of the whisky was placed in the Government depositories as early as 1911, and the majority was placed as early as 1917. A certain amount of lessening of the stock is due to evaporation and leakage which is estimated as nearly one-third of the total amount.
Q. What is meant by "Plantation of Ulster"? H. G. C.
A. The Ulster Plantation was the colonization of a large part of Ulster, Ireland, by England and Scottish settlers, 1609-11. The troubles of the early 17th century resulted in the forfeiture of a large part of Ulster to the Crown. In 1608 a commission was appointed to determine what to do with the lands. It was proposed to colonize the whole district with retired civil and military servants and colonists from England and Scotland. The lands were divided into portions of 1000, 1500, and 2000 acres and each large proprietor was bound to build a castle on his estate and forbidden to alienate the land to Irishmen.
Q. Do more husbands or wives obtain divorces? H. B.
A. Statistics show that women have been the plaintiffs in the most divorce suits. In 1923 they constituted 67.3 per cent of plaintiffs. The ratio has scarcely changed since 1887. Cruelty is the chief cause of action, followed by desertion and unfaithfulness. Divorces have increased 61 per cent since 1915, but at no time have the divorces in a year out-numbered the marriages in the United States as a whole. The ratio was in 1925, one divorce to 7.2 marriages.

Campus Rebels

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE ERIC WATERS, senior, and ER. PETER DORN, astronomy professor, are rivals for the favor of JUDITH MARTIN, finishing her first year in Pendleton University.

Dr. Dorn and DEAN TIMOTHY BROWN disapprove of Judith's circle of student friends. MYRA ALDRIDGE, in love with Eric, hates Judith because Eric seems to prefer her. Judith stumbles on a secret love affair of Dean Brown's wife but keeps the secret.

Two students die from bootleg poison. It is known they were in a party with Eric and Myra, and Dean Brown indirectly accuses Eric of importing the liquor.

Eric denies this in faculty meeting and Judith sides with him, to Dr. Dorn's horror. Dr. Dorn takes Judith star-gazing and almost proposes. But Judith makes fun of his serious-mindedness.

As he takes her home he learns that she lives in the room from which he had seen Eric climbing down the trellis one night. He does not know that Eric climbed up to ask her to unlock the door for Myra.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Judith had been asleep for some time when the lights flashed on in her room. She struggled to a sitting posture and blinked after her.

"Myra! For heaven's sake!" Myra glided across the room, her filmy lavender gown clinging about her. She sat down by Judith and patted her shoulder. "I know it's terrible to wake you up like this, but I just wanted to talk to you. I've had such a gorgeous time."

Judith squinted at the light. "Could you talk just as well in the dark?"

Myra danced away to the switch. But before she turned it off she sat down for a moment by the dressing table and began to arrange her bangs and smooth the narrow line of her eyebrows with the tip of her little finger. She cocked her head from side to side like a canary as she tried to see herself from every angle.

Then she wheeled around to face Judith. "Am I pretty, Judith?" she asked seriously. "Or am I just snappy? That's what lots of men call me."

"Well," said Judith, "I think you are both. But, to tell the truth, Myra—"

The girl interrupted her. She leaned toward the glass again. "I know what you're going to say. I'd be prettier if I hadn't had too much party night before last. That's right. There are some circles around my eyes. But don't you think they add mystery and allurements?"

Judith laughed. "Not much mystery attached to circles in these days, Myra. I think you'd be more attractive without them."

Myra made a face at her. "I think you're being catty." Then, with a flash of intuition, "why weren't you at the party tonight, Judith?"

Judith shifted her gaze. "Because I was out star-gazing." "Oo-oh," squealed Myra. "Then that explains it. We walked through the campus, singing, for a lark, on the way home. And we ran smack into Dr. Dorn, just nacing to and fro with his police dog, under a lamp post. When we were even with him, under the light, I said 'how do you do?'"

"He just stared at me and that was something grim in his eyes that made me shiver. Looked as if he had been computing the cat's chances of hitting a comet. He must have been thinking about his hopeless love for you."

Myra snapped out the light. "Eric's mother is lovely. All delicate violet scents and great dignity. I think she likes me. In fact, she's always acted as if she'd be glad to have us marry."

Judith lay frowning under cover of the darkness. From downstairs the jangle of the telephone startled them both. "I'll run down," said Myra, "on tiptoe."

In a moment she was back. "Judith, there's a woman who wants to talk to you. It's nearly three o'clock and I heard his feet padding across the hall. I hung up and fell back against the wall. Everything was quiet and soon I began to creep up the stairs. I looked up. There he stood, in his gray bathrobe, with his arms folded, glowering down at me over the banisters."

"He didn't say a word. It's his silence that terrifies me so. He just stared at me and I couldn't move. At last he turned and stalked away to the bedroom. I crawled up the stairs and lay down on the bed in the guest room till morning."

"What is wrong?" asked Judith, looking at her intently.

"The dean's wife looked at her pitiously. 'The dean means to recommend you to the board for dismissal.'"

"Dismissal?" The full force of the can't come here. Say ten-thirty at the College Inn. In a booth far back—"

A gasp came over the wire, then the sharp click of the receiver.

The College Inn was in the process of its daily cleaning when Judith arrived next morning. A tall negro looked up from his scrub pail and gave her a cheery good morning. "Have you seen Mrs. Timothy Brown?" Judith asked him.

"You mean old Dean Brown's wife?" he queried. "Nope. Ain't seed him today." He began to sing over his mop again.

Judith sought out a rear booth and tried to compose herself to wait for luncheon. They gave her curious glances now and then. Few people frequented the place before eleven. She sent for a pot of black coffee to drink while she waited.

The dean's wife appeared suddenly. She traveled toward the booth with queer, nervous little steps, like those of a rabbit scuttling to cover. She sat down opposite Judith and waited, grasping the enameled table top with both hands so fiercely that the finger tips showed white.

Judith poured a cup of coffee and passed it to Mrs. Brown silently. The woman sipped daintily but pushed it aside after a moment.

She looked at Judith apologetically. "I'm so ashamed of myself for being so cowardly. But I've lived in panic for hours now. I can't help it. I can't get away from the dean."

"Last night, when I was talking to you, his door banged open upstairs and I heard his feet padding across the hall. I hung up and fell back against the wall. Everything was quiet and soon I began to creep up the stairs. I looked up. There he stood, in his gray bathrobe, with his arms folded, glowering down at me over the banisters."

"He didn't say a word. It's his silence that terrifies me so. He just stared at me and I couldn't move. At last he turned and stalked away to the bedroom. I crawled up the stairs and lay down on the bed in the guest room till morning."

"What is wrong?" asked Judith, looking at her intently.

"The dean's wife looked at her pitiously. 'The dean means to recommend you to the board for dismissal.'"

"Dismissal?" The full force of the word had not struck Judith. "Why, what do you mean? On what grounds?"

Mrs. Brown swayed against the back of the seat and clasped her hands tightly. "He doesn't need any real grounds. He hates you and he'll finish you. See what he's done to me." Judith sat silent, staring at her.

"I'd never have done anything wrong either," said Mrs. Brown. "It hadn't been for the dean. 'It's because he's so terribly holy. Human beings can't live with saints. They're not made that way. But what's driving me frantic is the fact that I could save you and I don't dare.'"

Judith looked blank. "I don't understand." "Mrs. Brown wrung her hands. 'Don't you see? The dean means to charge that you and Mr. Waters went away for a weekend together. Your bearing out Waters story in the faculty meeting the other day will strengthen his charge.'"

"I know you can prove your innocence, but if he brings even the suspicion against you in public your teaching career will suffer. You'll always be under a cloud. He'll influence the board against you, and if you don't get a recommendation from them you won't get a good place anywhere else. 'Oh, this teaching is a slave's life, Judith. You don't realize how dangerous his story might be for you.'"

Judith was thoughtful. Mrs. Brown wrung her hands. "If only I weren't a craven coward I could save you."

"How?" asked Judith. "Well, if I told him I was in Middleburg that week end, and saw your name registered alone on the hotel book, he'd have to believe me. I did see it, you know, after we met in the dining room. But he'd be sure to find out I wasn't alone."

Judith looked at her sharply. "Now look here, I'm not going to let you step into this at such a risk yourself. It isn't necessary. I'll find some other way out."

Two boys in football sweaters came in and took seats at a nearby table. "No prunes today, Oscar," said one of them to the waiter. They began to talk and laugh.

The dean's wife picked up her bag and scarf. She looked pitiously at Judith. "What are we going to do?" Judith smiled as brightly as she could. "Nothing at all, just yet. You are not to interfere at all, do

TWENTY AT MEETING OF MUSIC CLUB

Mrs. S. W. Murphy, 813 E. College-ave, was hostess to the Wednesday Musicale Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. S. J. Kloehn had charge of the program. About 20 persons were present at the meeting.

"Arabesque No. 1" by Debussy was you understand? I'll manager this without the need of heroics. You must try to snap out of this blue funk and fight back, as I told you the other day. There is always some way out. I'll try to help you solve the whole miserable tangle if you'll just promise not to make any needless confession for my sake."

Mrs. Brown pressed her hand. They approached the cashier's cage a moment later. Mrs. Brown walking tremulously ahead. Judith saw her start and tremble.

Leaning against the counter, talking to the cashier, was "Kitty" Shea. The dean's wife took a step forward and disappeared through the door. Shea did not speak to Judith but he leered at her as she approached to pay her bill.

Mrs. Brown is successful with the dean, but "Kitty" Shea learns something and blackmail is threatened.

CONFERENCE GRID ATTENDANCE BREAKS ALL RECORDS

Lawrence Loses Eight Crack Gridders From 1926 State Title Team

Center, Two Guards, Tackle, End and Three Halfs Complete Grid Careers

Eight veterans of the 1926 Lawrence college football team, claimant of the state and W-I conference titles, have worn their Blue jerseys for the last time, records of the school show. The line is hard hit by the loss of the eight players as the list included at least one regular at each line job and two at tackle. In the rear wall three halfbacks including both regulars of this year are "all caught up" on their work for the Blue. The line losses include a center, two guards, a tackle and an end, all veterans.

Players who finished their work include five three-year men and three who have played won their spurs for two seasons. They are Robert Hipke, New Holstein, three-year center; Otis Weinlauf, Appleton and Otis Steensland, Blanchardville, guards, two year vets; Capt. Marvin C. Marshall, Marshfield, tackle and guard for three years; Lester Bayer, Merrill, end, two year man; Harold Briscoe, and Walter Heidemann, Appleton, and Bert Nason, Wisconsin Rapids, three year halfbacks. Capt. Counsel had been named all-state and all-Midwest linemen for the last two years while Nason, Briscoe and Hipke have won positions on squads in all-state teams in the last three years. Hipke's work was especially noticeable as he had never played a game of football before coming to Lawrence.

In spite of the heavy losses the Blue will be fairly well fortified in every department when fall rolls around again if every member of this year's squad, who is not through, returns to school. At least Except for Capt. Counsel's tackle, every position on the team will see a member on this year's squad in the fight for the job. The other tackle berth will be taken care of by Elmer Ott, Kaukauna, a two-year star while at Kaukauna, will be alternates of this year, Fred Schauer, Hartford and Arthur Artz, Milwaukee. Artz was used a lot while Schauer came to the fore in the last few games after having played football before this fall.

At ends are the two regulars of this year who have two seasons yet before them. Olin Jessup, Marshfield, should be a star of the first half next year and could even be used in the rear wall if necessary. Paired with him is Arnold Hillman, Appleton, who starred in every game near the season's close. At center is Leslie Johnson, Racine, who alternated this year at that job and guard. Johnson will be a valuable man if the knee injury which bothered him this year heals.

In the rear wall the nucleus will be Francis Bloomer, Appleton, quarterback star, and Ralph Barfell, Brownsville, line smasher. Subs of this year who may make the grade are George Schlegelhauf, Neenah; George Dreher, Milwaukee; Alex. Hunter, Mukwonago; Arthur Humphrey, New Richmond; Milton Portz, Hartford. All saw service, especially Hunter, who looked like a regular on plunkers. Humphrey quarter mile star was slated for a regular half job because of his speed and interference work when a knee injury stopped him for the year.

In the line Oren Welk, Columbus, also a newcomer to football, showed great promise of using his bulk to advantage next year.

Coming up from the frosh is a snappy rear wall lead by Jack Farwell, Kaukauna, star passer, line crasher and punter. Farwell plays fullback and is aided by William Deventhal and Raymond Brunsat, Milwaukee, and Paul Gelbke, Appleton, in forming a rear wall which will make the varsity backs work to hold their jobs. In the frosh line are several good men, the most outstanding being Kronen of Wabeno, who can step into a varsity guard, center or tackle job at any time and probably will be the leading candidate with Welk for the vacant tackle. Gilbert St. Mitchell, Kaukauna, an end, and Carl Voelck, Appleton, guard or tackle, are other good players.

Leaders In Flag Races On Sept. 3 Are Winners

New York—Some interesting dope relative to the winning of major league pennants has been dug up by one of the many demon statisticians. Since the American League came into the field in 1900 only on four occasions has any major league club that was out in front on Sept. 3 failed to win the pennant.

Strangely enough, not once has such a thing happened in the American league. The four upsets all have occurred in the National.

Twice the New York Giants have been overtaken after being in the lead in early September, once by the Cubs in 1908, when the Merkle incident prevented New York from winning the other time in 1914, when the Braves made their rush from the cellar to a championship.

The other two exceptions were when Cincinnati lost to Brooklyn in 1920 and Pittsburgh was tripped by New York in 1921. The Giants brought about the defeat of Pittsburgh by taking the other time in 1914, when the Braves made their rush from the cellar to a championship.

Nearly 1,500,000 Fans Bring $2,500,000 Fund Into Big Ten Treasury

Michigan Sets Pace by Playing to 390,000 at Home and Abroad

Chicago—(AP)—Football attendance and gate receipts broke all records in the Western conference this year, figures compiled Wednesday night showing an attendance of nearly 1,500,000 with receipts of more than $2,500,000. Michigan played to 390,000 spectators, at home and abroad, another Big Ten record, and the Ohio-Michigan battle drew 34,000, the largest paid attendance ever attracted to a football game in history—although for the Army-Navy game next Saturday 100,000 have been sold.

The University of Chicago team failed to win a conference victory and scored only two touchdowns against Big Ten opponents, but with six home games "reversed the field" and finished first in total home attendance and receipts for the season.

Chicago led Illinois, the next school, by 10,000 in total attendance, and was more than $100,000 ahead of the Illinois in total receipts.

The largest single "gate" of the season was the $170,000 at Michigan-Ohio. This was greater than the entire season receipts of Indiana, Purdue and Iowa combined.

Stadium at Minnesota, Northwestern and Chicago helped to raise the attendance figure at those schools, and the new field in prospect for Michigan next fall will give the Yostmen a chance for larger attendance. They had three sell-out crowds of 48,000 at home this year. Northwestern's new stadium will be doubled in size for next season. The 1926 Big Ten figures are:

	Total	Total
Iowa	43,000	$100,000
Ohio	103,000	340,000
Purdue	41,000	47,350

Indiana	20,265	15,847
Minnesota	135,842	266,000
Illinois	225,000	400,000
Northwestern	179,500	325,000
Chicago	235,000	510,000

SERVICE RIVALS REACH CHI TODAY

Squads Workout Until Friday Afternoon: Weather Forecast Is for Rain

Chicago—(AP)—Football squads of the U. S. Military and Naval academies sped toward Chicago Thursday in special trains with a threat of rain menacing their annual contest to be played at Soldiers field Saturday.

Taking cognizance of the Midwest's greatest football spectacle, the weather bureau issued a special forecast which promised likelihood of clouds and showers on the day of the game as well as at Friday ceremonies of Dedication at Soldiers field.

Unsettled weather, accompanied by rain was forecast, temperatures higher than normal will make snow unlikely, the weather bureau said.

The two service teams reach the city Thursday afternoon the Navy at 1 o'clock and the Army at 3:30. The Navy will hasten to Soldiers field for a short practice and then to the South Shore hotel where it will be escorted until Saturday. Army warriors will go at once under police guard, to the South Shore county club where they will live and practice for two days.

Both teams will dine Thursday in a manner appropriate to Thanksgiving with turkey and stuffing. But there will be a meager portion on each plate, and none of the delicacies which might upset the tensed muscles and physical poise of the athletes.</

TOWN HEADS MIGHT BE COMMISSIONERS

Attorney General Gives Decision on Highway Job Compatibility

Madison—(P)—Officers of county highway commissioner and town chairman are compatible in counties operating under commissioner form of county government, according to an opinion given by Attorney General Herman L. Ekern to District Attorney C. J. Strang, Burnett County, today.

In an opinion to District Attorney Herman R. Salen of Waushara, the Attorney General held that where a contract is entered into between a school board and a teacher, commencing on September 8 in a certain year and terminating nine months later, and where the teacher at the time the contract was entered into held a certificate authorizing him to teach, the fact that the certificate expired on March 1 the following year does not preclude recovery under the contract on the part of the teacher for the contract period commencing on September 8 and terminating on March 1 the following year.

Opinions to the Banking Commissioner held that a state bank chartered in a certain town, village or city in this state cannot move its bank to another town, village or city in this state. Chartered state bank cannot be amended so that the location of the bank can be changed from one municipality to another. A bank given fiduciary powers under sec. 221.04 (6) has same trust powers as are conferred on trust companies, he said.

BLIND SPELL BETTER THAN NORMAL PUPILS

Madison—(P)—The spelling ability of the deaf greatly exceeds that of the normal child, due to the fact that the visual perception of the deaf is necessarily more highly developed than that of the normal child.

This is the statement of Lavilla A. Ward, of the Department of Public Instruction, in a report on a handicapped children, "Ability to spell."

Says Miss Ward, "is a by-product of language development. I think all for-laid spelling periods could be safely omitted and the time used for language development."

Great progress is being made in the treatment of deaf children, according to the report, and with the improvement of scientific instruments to test the hearing ability of students, further advancement will be possible.

"Manufacturers are active at present," says the report, "and indications are that we will soon have a machine that will greatly aid us."

"We are making progress along these lines," continued Miss Ward.

CHAMBER RECEIVES 4 SPECIAL BULLETINS

Four bulletins on Distribution have been received by Appleton Chamber of Commerce from the domestic distribution department of the national chamber, it is reported. The bulletins are Educational Courses for Retail Salespeople, Special Sales Events, Group Efficiency by Merchants for Promotion of Trade, and Merchant's Institutes. The books can be secured for reference at the local office.

"But we must not lose sight of the fact that these developments apply only half of the children enrolled in our schools today. The education of those who are so deaf that they cannot be reached through the hearing by any devices known, is difficult and slow. With these children, the problem is development of language. Few of us, even among the teachers of the deaf, realize the significance of their language disability."

Mrs. Dumas Says Gas Took Her Breath

"I had gas on the stomach so bad that I could hardly breathe. Everything I ate went against me. After I began taking Adierika, the gas left me and I ate everything."—Mrs. E. J. Dumas.

Adierika differs from most medicines because it acts upon BOTH upper and lower bowel. It gives the system a REAL cleansing, and clears out old poisons which usually cause sour, gassy stomach, nervousness, sleeplessness, headache. Just ONE spoonful stops GAS, and relieves that full, bloated feeling so that you can eat better and sleep better. Even if bowels move daily, Adierika brings out much additional poison which you never guessed was in your system and which may have long caused trouble. No matter what you have tried for stomach and bowels, Adierika will surprise you. At leading druggists. In Appleton at Voigt's Drug Store and other druggists.

LIBRARY BUSIER ON FRIDAY NIGHT

Patronage at City Library Heavier Lately Than Ever Before

Business at the Appleton public library has been heavier in the past few weeks than at any time in the history of the institution, according to Miss Florence Day, librarian. Particularly on Friday night has the increase been noticed, and Saturday, too, has shown more readers and borrowers of books.

The unusual number of readers on Friday night may be due partly to the new schedule at Lawrence college which includes Saturday classes, it is believed. Friday is thus a school night to these temporary citizens, and their library reading is carried on that night as well as the usual four school nights, Miss Day said. Whether the circulation has materially increased, the librarian did not know, but the number of people in the library evenings has increased. A greater volume of business in libraries throughout the state has been reported by workers. Reasons for the increase were not stated. Libraries in any section of the country usually have the same general trend of business, Miss Day said. When one city shows an increased business, it usually is found in about the same degree in other cities in the district.

SEEK PARENTS' HELP IN TARDINESS HABIT

Parents of repented tardiness offenders at Appleton high school received letters this week from the school office stating the number of times their son or daughter has been out of the school and asking the cooperation of the parents in the future. The question of tardiness is being stressed early in the year in order to prevent it from becoming a habit with the students, according to the letters, which were signed by H. H. Helble, principal.

Three of the office assistants who are members of the practical office work class did the mechanical work of mimeographing and addressing the letters which were sent to all students who had been tardy more than once since the beginning of the fall term. Miss Ella Gehring, Miss Donna Hornmann and Miss Lilian Omdarbeck were directed by Miss Margaret Thompson, office secretary.

MOTION PICTURE WILL BE SHOWN BY CHURCH

The picture is a sketch of the leading character's life. Organ music will be furnished during the picture by LaVahn Maesch and Carl J. Waterman will furnish a special musical number. The largest attendance at the church Sunday evening services, 400, was present last week. The Plymouth club is in charge of the arrangements and ushers, with Frank Younger taking charge of the ushering for November. The club will issue invitations next week to all people of the parish to attend the picture. "Welcome Stranger," which will be shown Dec. 1, is the picture with the big stage and movie success. The public is invited to the church motion picture services but children under 12 years of age will not be admitted unless accompanied by an older person.

The Foreign and Domestic Trade Promotion Service of the United States Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, will be the subject of a talk which will be given by F. L. Roberts, district manager of the United States department of commerce, to a group of Appleton men on Thursday, Dec. 16. Mr. Roberts will speak here a few years ago, will address the Appleton Advertising club at its noon meeting. The club has invited all industrial members of the chamber of commerce and others of Appleton, Neenah and Menasha, to hear Mr. Roberts.

About 35 girls will be entered from each school. Dances of the different countries will be featured and parts will be assigned for the various roles shortly after Thanksgiving vacation. Miss Wohlk said. Groups will be selected from the physical education classes at the schools.

JOHNS WRITES MAGAZINE ARTICLE ON FORESTRY

An article by J. L. Johns of Appleton, district governor and a member of the public affairs committee of the Kiwanis club, advocating reforestation in Wisconsin and the entire country appears in the December issue of the Wisconsin magazine. The article is three and a half pages in length and is called "Do We Need A Forest Policy?"

The picture on the front cover, entitled "The Trails that Call," shows a well-known Appleton nimrod, Helm Husner in the north woods standing next to a deer almost twice his size which he shot while on a hunt. The picture is a cartoon by J. L. Johns, a member of the Kiwanis club, and is a tribute to the hunting and fishing life of the north woods.

DEBATERS WORKING FOR FIRST TRYOUTS

Members of High School Teams Will Be Selected in December

Debaters at Appleton high school have been working three nights each week preparing material for the preliminary tryouts to be held in December. Candidates have secured data from the high school, city and Lawrence college libraries on the question, "Resolved, that the Philippines should be given their independence immediately." Each candidate will work up a speech relative to the question and deliver it at the tryouts. Those having the best talks and showing the greatest promise as debaters will be chosen by Adam Aitchison, debate coach, for the two teams.

Appleton will meet schools in the Fox River Valley Forensic league again this year. Preliminary debates of the eight schools will be held on March 25 and winners of the triangles will meet on April 5. Schools entered in the league are Manitowoc, Sheboygan, Marinette, Oshkosh, Fond du Lac, Green Bay, West Green Bay and Appleton.

DEATHS

FRED M. HYDE
The funeral of Fred M. Hyde, merchant, lumberman, writer, and prominent citizen of Deer Creek township and brother of DeForest M. Hyde of Appleton, who died Sunday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. A. W. Hewitt of Oshkosh, was held Wednesday afternoon at Clintonville. Interment was in the family lot there.

He was born at Rosendale and lived there until he was 18 years of age when he went to the Michigan mines where he was engaged in lumbering and locating of lands for many years. In 1878 he settled at Deer Creek where he established a mercantile business. In later years, he devoted much of his time to writing articles on pioneering in Wisconsin and Michigan.

Survivors are two daughters, Mrs. A. H. Hewitt and Miss Janet Hyde; one son, Roger Oshkosh; one brother, DeForest M. Hyde of Appleton; four grandchildren and several nieces and nephews. Funeral services were held at Clintonville Wednesday afternoon and interment was made at the family lot at Clintonville.

JOANNA AND MARIE STARK
Funeral services for Joanna and Marie, infant daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stark, 1209 N. Clark-st., who died Tuesday were held from the Breitschneider Undertaking parlors at 8:30 Thursday morning. The twins were born Tuesday morning. Burial was at St. Joseph cemetery.

PENNY THROWING WILL BE STOPPED AT GAMES

Drills and athletic dances will take the place of penny throwing between halves at Appleton high school basketball games this season, according to the plans of Miss Edith Yaeger and Joseph Shields, physical directors at the school. The practice of throwing hot pennies to the floor for small boys to scramble after has been deplored by the high school authorities for several years, but no method was devised to remedy the matter. By the sporting entertainment by the physical education classes much of the intermission will be taken and there will not be time for the "penny throwing," it is believed.

A wand drill has been prepared by some of the high school girls under the direction of Miss Yaeger and probably will be given at one of the first home games, she said. A group is now practicing an Amazon Triumph dance and other dances and drills will be learned later. Another advantage in the plan, Miss Yaeger said, is to show parents and townspeople the type of work done in the gymnasium classes.

CLUB PRESIDENT WILL SPEAK AT CONVENTION

Harry Snyder, Farmington, Minn., president of the All-College club at Lawrence college and of the Wisconsin college Y. M. C. A., will be one of the speakers at the annual state convention of the association in Racine Friday and Saturday. Student Work at College will be the subject of the Lawrence student's address. The chief speaker at the convention will be Sherwood Edgley, nationally known Y. M. C. A. worker.

There are eleven thousand millionaires and one billionaire in the United States.

MANY AFTER PERMITS TO TRAP, HUNT

Professional and amateur trappers of Outagamie-co maintain a stolid demeanor and aver as "how it may be a good winter on the lines—and then again—it may not."

However, present indications would point to the general belief that small fur bearing animals would be fairly plentiful, judging from the number of trapping licenses and tags already issued through the office of County Clerk John E. Hantschel.

"Muskrat ought to be running pretty heavy and later you usually can find a good many skunks,—though you can't always catch 'em in traps," one professional declared, "but I'm not here to say what can be expected, conditions govern that too often."

Trapping beaver is forbidden and muskrat and skunk represent the majority of pelts hung up this year. Although the "business" is one with some appeal for farmers and their sons a fair share of professional talent will be represented, it was declared. Licenses for 200 trapping permits and a large number of tags have been taken out, Mr. Hantschel said Wednesday.

BOARD OF EDUCATION TO TALK MATHEMATICS

Other educational meetings will be held to discuss English in the schools and later in the year, Dr. M. H. Small, principal of the Wilson junior high school, will work up a talk on manual training and kindred subjects.

The meeting of the schoolmasters club of the Fox River valley was announced, Dr. Henry M. Wriston, president of Lawrence college, and H. H. Helble, principal of the Appleton high school, will be among the speakers at the meeting which will be held at Menasha Dec. 3.

Thirty-six active students mostly from the Kewaunee Manufacturing Co. and Lysic Aluminum Co., make up the class which will meet every Thursday evening for ten weeks. F. G. Wheeler of Appleton, chemical engineer of the Kimberly-Clark Co. at Kimberly, is in charge of the work.

Text material for the class is written by G. L. Gardiner, former employment manager of the General Motors Co. Subjects which will be taken up are handling men, industrial goodwill, employment management, selecting men for jobs, plans of industrial activities, keeping high quality, safety work, wage problems and advantages of increased production.

SOLICITATION TO RED CROSS ENDS; RESULTS CHECKED

Records of Roll Call Will Be Made Public Monday. Committee Says

Solicitations for memberships to the Red Cross were completed Wednesday by the Appleton committee, headed by D. M. H. Smith. Records of the roll call will not be made public until Monday, the chairman said, in order to allow a few days for people who have not subscribed to do so.

The special roll call by students of the William, Roosevelt and McKinley schools will not be issued until next week in order to add a supplement of four pages to the eight page article. When the revised work was completed it was found that more material had been compiled than could be included in the issue planned, and the printing classes at the schools will do the mechanical work after the Thanksgiving vacation. The committee originally planned to send the paper to citizens as a part of the propaganda work for the membership drive, but the larger edition will be issued merely for informational purposes about the work of the Red Cross.

Editors of the paper from the three schools were: Bessie Babcock, Dorothy DeBry, Frances Brewer, Paul Dehart, Alma Dumke, Winifred Z. Williams, Peter, Beverly, Grant, Helen Hartmann, Grant Howell, Janette Hughes, Doris Koehnke, Alva Kraus, Robert Mortimer, Clarence Martin, John

A Thanksgiving Day Reflection

With the dawn of Thanksgiving Day the glowing spark of gratefulness which is within the breast of everyone bursts into flame. This day we thus give thanks for having so generously received. What a wonderful American thought—one selected day so devoted to giving thanks.

And as we partake of the day's festivities at the fire-sides of friends and families, what a great good for finer citizenship comes from the influence of it all. Indeed, we have much more to be thankful for in having Thanksgiving Day itself: the blessedness the day itself bestows.
